LO AAUW and Lake Oswego Reads Present

Breaking the Sound Barrier: Celebrating Unsung Heroes in Science

Saturday, February 11
10:30 a.m.

Lakewood Center for the Arts, downstairs
368 S. State Street, Lake Oswego, OR 97034

Our branch is once again partnering with Lake Oswego Reads to invite the public to Breaking the Sound Barrier, a play about unknown and accomplished women in STEM fields. This lively reader's theatre is presented by the Lake Oswego Branch of AAUW and directed by Barbara McDonald. It will bring to light the stories of many women scientists who made significant achievements but are relatively unknown. The actors will represent Nobel Prize winners, astronauts, inventors and other inspirational women scientists in an engaging format.

Members acting in the reader's theatre include new members Nancy Dunis, Jeanne Lemieux, Jeanne-Marie Pierrelouis, Susan Shea, Mary Pat Silveira, and Stephanie Wagner. Esther Halvorsen-Hill is the music director. The show was written by Gloria Holland of the Salem branch of AAUW, and adapted by Barbara McDonald.

Lake Oswego Reads is sponsored by Friends of the Lake Oswego Library and is in its 11th year, featuring this year's book, Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women who Propelled us, from Missiles to the Moon to Mars. The book is the non-fiction story of women, mostly mathematicians, who starting in the 1940s helped launch American into space. The book fits perfectly with AAUW's mission to promote young women entering into STEM fields.

Refreshments will be available. Attendees will also enjoy our book sale of current and recent hardcover and trade paperback books, both fiction and non-fiction. Please note change of location to Lakewood Center for the Arts, downstairs, and time change.

Squire's Scribblings

by Pat Squire, President

After a fractured January due to ice and snow storms, we are rolling again! Having experienced "cabin fever", many of us are anxious to get busy and back to our activities.

Starring!!! Our own Barbara McDonald will direct this year's Lake Oswego Reads/AAUW program on Saturday, February 11. This show, because of its special nature as a theatre production, will be held at Lakewood Center for the Arts, downstairs. It is open to the public, and we anticipate a good attendance from Lake Oswego Reads fans. Barbara says she appreciates the show's relation to the LO Reads book, Rise of the Rocket Girls: The Women who Propelled us, from Missiles to the Moon to Mars. This non-fiction account is about the special women who helped launch America into space, starting in the 1940s and 50s.

The show, Breaking the Sound Barrier: Celebrating Unsung Heroes in Science, showcases women scientists, mathematicians, inventors, Noble Prize winners, and astronauts who are relatively unknown. It stars some of our newest members: Nancy Dunis, Jeanne Lemieux, Jeanne-Marie Pierrelouis, Susan Shea, Mary Pat Silveira and Stephanie Wagner. Esther Halverson-Hill is the music director. This is a new and fun undertaking for our branch, and fits in well with our AAUW mission to support women in the fields of Science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM).

February 11 is also the date of our annual book sale, a fundraiser for our scholarship. Current hardcover and trade paperback favorites, donated by you will be on sale to the public.

We are still accepting donations of books and ask you to contact us by February 7 so we can collect your books. Contact Mindy McCaslin (mindymcc@comcast.net) to donate books. We appreciate your support! And of course there will be books you'll want to buy . . .

As evidenced by the interest in the Women's March, we hope you will commit to attending the AAUW Lobby Day on Wednesday, Feb. 15. A Lobby Day registration form is in this newsletter. As you register, we will arrange car pooling. We urge you to consider attending this interesting and meaningful day in Salem. The registration form is on page 5.

Meet Faye Canapé

by Pat Squire

Faye Canapé and her husband moved to Lake Oswego four years ago from central New Jersey, where they had lived for many years. She joined AAUW in September, and right away Penny Hansen recruited her to be a greeter and help with refreshments for our busy October meeting. I had the pleasure of volunteering with her recently, welcoming patrons to the temporary setting at the Lake Oswego Library during its reconstruction. She is a lively, enthusiastic and intelligent woman!

Faye spent 36 years as a kindergarten and first grade teacher in New Jersey. It was clear as we volunteered that she enjoyed interacting with the mothers bringing their young children for the reading program at the library.

She has a 33-year-old daughter with some special needs, and Samantha had lived at home with her parents for most of her life. Faye and Gerald were looking for more opportunities for Samantha to become more independent, to have friends and feel useful. They were impressed with the Jewish community in the Portland area, especially with the welcome they received and the new apartment living program for adults with special needs. After some preliminary investigation, they decided to move to Lake Oswego and take their chances that Samantha would get into one of the apartments. They were successful and are very happy with the results.

Faye is an excellent volunteer. In New Jersey, she cooked and served once a week at a soup kitchen. She volunteers with Lakewood Associates, at the Library and at Lake Oswego Parks and Recreation. She is a “foodie” and enjoys trying new restaurants. Faye says she is trying not to over-commit, but she clearly enjoys being engaged with the community and the couple loves living in Lake Oswego. Welcome, Faye!

Meet Jeanne Lemieux

by Pat Squire

We have such interesting women in AAUW! Jeanne Lemieux, one of our actors in Breaking the Sound Barrier, joined our branch at the October meeting. She was drawn by speaker Tom Balmer, the Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court. His talk resonated with Jeanne because of her professional career.

Jeanne’s background is in child development, and in Oregon she worked for 5 ½ years as a site coordinator for Head Start. She later served a nine-year stint as the director of Child Care Resource and Referral of Multnomah County, a federal and state block grant program in association with Mt. Hood Community College.

Those two positions and her background make Jeanne very aware of the importance of services to families and children. Jeanne just retired 18 months ago.

Jeanne and her husband Charles moved from Fairfax, Virginia to Lake Oswego 30 years ago for her husband's job in the outdoor power equipment business. They explored communities for education advantages for their high school children. Her daughter, now a principal in an architecture firm, lives in Portland. Her son and his family live in southern California.

Jeanne grew up in Ohio and attended a women's college in Maryland, where she got her education degree. She earned her Master's in Child and Family Development at Virginia Tech, and worked as a teacher in Fairfax. She is passionate about early childhood education for all.

Jeanne loves to travel and has recently explored family connections in Ireland. Now that she is retired, she is excited to have the time to join the Tuesday book group, and is looking forward to advocating on behalf of women's issues with AAUW. Meanwhile, catch her in the reader's theatre program on February 11!

Note from Scholarship Recipient

"Happy New Year! I just wanted to check in with you and thank you for your support this year!

Fall term was a success and I am glad to report all "A's"! It is because of you and the AAUW that I am able to continue on this educational journey.

With warm wishes to you and all the women at AAUW,

Lisa Gardner and the Littles, too!"
