Jottings from Jane

LAF is the nation's largest legal fund focused solely on sex discrimination in higher education

February is the month when the branch focuses its attention on the Legal Advocacy Fund. For those of us in Oregon, the mention of LAF most often brings to mind the case of Vicky Dugan vs. Oregon State University. Many of us have met her. Many more have heard the tale of how, in addition to the financial assistance she received from LAF, the members of the Corvallis branch were a constant friendly presence in the courtroom, opened their homes to her, and on a day-to-day basis offered both practical and moral support.

Do you realize that LAF is the nation's largest legal fund focused solely on sex discrimination in higher education? Since 1981 the AAUW Legal Advocacy Fund has helped students, faculty, staff, and administrators in higher education challenge discriminatory practices such as sexual harassment, denial of tenure or promotion, pay inequity, and inequality in women's athletics programs.

In addition to support for suits against discrimination, the LAF offers referrals through a network of attorneys and experts. Network partners provide initial consultations to individuals considering or conducting sex discrimination litigation against colleges and universities. The Network — more than 300 participants in 48 states and the District of Columbia — provides plaintiffs and potential plaintiffs with the information they need to make the best decisions about their legal recourse. Network partners include attorneys with expertise in Title VII, sexual harassment, Title IX, pay equity, and other areas. Network experts, who are often called on as potential expert witnesses, specialize in areas relevant to sex discrimination such as the psychological effect of discrimination on professional women, and institutional practices.

LAF has for the past ten years offered a Campus Outreach Program to educate students and staff about sex discrimination issues, share ways to address and prevent sex discrimination, and provide action steps toward creating a more equitable campus climate.

Contributions to the Legal Advocacy Fund are another way in which we, individually and as a branch, demonstrate that we know that Equity is Still an Issue. Please bear that in mind when you are asked to donate to this cause.
